Distinguished, Notable or Famous Sinclairs

Patrick Sinclair (1736-1820)

Career Army Officer

Patrick Sinclair was born at Lybster, Caithness, Scotland. He went to Canada with the army and became fascinated with the Great Lakes. In 1775, he was appointed Lieutenant-Governor and Superintendent of Michilimackinac in Quebec. He organized missions against the Spanish in St. Louis and spent all his official funds keeping the Indians loyal to Britain. The military refused to pay his drafts and Sinclair died impoverished in Lybster.

Arthur St. Clair II (1737-1818)

Major General; Military Veteran; Politician;

During the Colonial Wars, then Lieutenant Arthur St. Clair served in the British Army with General Amherst when the English troops routed the French from their stronghold settlement at Louisbourg, Cape Breton Island, now a part of the Canadian Province of Nova Scotia. He also carried the Colours for General Wolfe at the Battle of the Heights of Abraham near Quebec City, Quebec. He served in the Continental Army under General George Washington as his trusted advisor during the American War of Independence, rising to the rank of Major General while serving with distinction. He later became an American politician and was appointed President of the Continental Congress for one term and under the Northwest Ordinance of 1787, became the Governor of the North-Western Territory, an area now recognized as the Mid-Western United States of America.

Sir John Sinclair of Ulbster 1st Baronet (1754-1835)

Lawyer; Scottish Politician;

Born at Thurso Castle, Sir John was the eldest son of George Sinclair of Ulbster and a member of the family of the Earls of Caithness. He was educated at the Universities of Edinburgh and Glasgow and at Trinity College in Oxford. He was admitted to the Faculty of Advocates in Scotland and called to the English Bar although he never practiced law. Sir John was the first President of the Scottish Board of Agriculture, of which he had been instrumental in creating and became the Compiler and Editor of the First Statistical Account of Scotland. He introduced the use of the word "statistics" following a trip to Northern Europe to examine agricultural techniques thereby adopting the use of the word in a slightly different context. Sinclair was returned to the House of Commons for Caithness in 1780 his parliamentary career extending to 1811 with few interruptions. His reputation as a financier and economist had been established by the publication of his History of the Public Revenue of the British Empire. Widespread ruin was prevented by the adoption of his plan for the issue of Exchequer Bills and on his advice, Pitt issued the "loyalty loan" of eighteen millions for the prosecution of war.

William Sinclair (1766-1818)

Fur Trader; Chief Factor; Governor; Hudson's Bay Company;

William was born in Harray Parish in the Orkney Isles and is a descendant of William of Rosslyn, the 3rd Earl of Orkney and the 1st Earl of Caithness. William joined the Hudson's Bay Company (HBC) in 1782 to travel to Rupert's Land (Manitoba) at York Factory on Hudson's Bay as an Account Writer and later a Fur Trader and Chief Factor. After living there, William married (c1791) Nahoway (Margaret) a young Cree Maiden (daughter of a Scottish father and Cree mother) and they raised 10 children, all of whom participated in one way or another in the pioneering effort of Manitoba, Western Canada and the Oregon Coastline. William and Nahoway formed the first Sinclair union of mixed origins in Canada. William died on April 20, 1818 and is buried at York Factory.

Nahowway (Margaret Norton) Sinclair (c1768-1857)

Married to William Sinclair 1791;

Nahowway (her Cree name) was born near York Factory about 1768 and is believed to be the daughter of Moses Norton and Cree mother called Margaret Holden. She married William Sinclair and raised 10 children while helping William operate HBC's trading posts at various locations where he was sent in Manitoba's northern wilderness. Their children included Phoebe 1792-1848; William 'Credo' 1794-1868; Anne 1796-1861; Catherine 1798-1881; Jane 1801-1861; Mary 1804-1892; John 1807-?; James 1809-1856; Thomas 1810-1870; and, Colin Robertson 1816-1901. Three additional children attributed to William but not Nahowway, the actual mother is unknown includes Elizabeth 'Betsy' 1805-1878; Benjamin 1814-1884 and Frances 'Fanny' 1818-1879. After William's death, Nahowway moved to the Selkirk Settlement (near Winnipeg) with her daughter Mary and son Thomas. She died many years later at their home at Seven Oaks where she lived with her daughter Mary Inkster (Orkney Johnny Inkster). She is buried near there in St. John's Cathedral Cemetery.

Arthur Sinclair II (1780-1831)

American Commodore; Naval Officer;

An early American Naval Hero, Arthur Sinclair II served in the United States Navy during the Quasi War with France, the 1st Barbary War and the War of 1812. While serving as a mid-shipman, he was involved in the capture of the French frigate “L. Insurgente” during 1789 and later was serving on the “Essex” with the Mediterranean Squadron participating in the attacks on Tripoli in the early 1800’s. Commanding the “Argus” in late 1812, his superior ship handling allowed him to escape an enemy squadron. During the War of 1812, he also successfully commanded the “General Pike” in engagements on Lake Ontario; the “Niagara” in several engagements on Lake Huron and Lake Superior as well as directing a naval squadron in the Battle of Mackinac Island.

Andrew Sinclair (1796-1861)

Career Surgeon; Naval Officer;

Born in Paisley Scotland, Andrew Sinclair trained as a Surgeon and was appointed Assistant-Surgeon in the Royal Navy. He became interested in botanical work and sold as well as giving many important specimens to the British Museum. During 1844 he became Colonial Secretary and was a shrewd advisor and businessman. He died on an exploration of the Southern Alps in 1861.

Catherine Sinclair (1800-1864)

Writer; Author; Activist;

Catherine was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and became a very talented and prolific authoress with a social conscience. She would become internationally popular and her book Beatrice sold over 100,000 copies in England and America, quite an accomplishment for the time. Her works always conveyed a strong moral tone. While living in Edinburgh, she became a community activist and launched many projects to support and assist the underprivileged.

James Sinclair (1817-1897)

Businessman; Builder; Politician; Financier;

Sinclair was born in Lybster, Caithness, Scotland and emigrated to New Zealand. During 1852, he built the first wooden house at Wairall and became friendly with and did business with the natives. He became a Merchant and Banker for runholders. He was regarded as the founder of Blenheim and responsible for fixing the capital there. He became a Politician and was a Member of Councils from 1860-1874 and largely responsible for the separation of Marlborough from Nelson.

Alexander Sinclair (1840-1924)

Career Clergyman; Gaelic Scholar;

A Canadian, Alexander Sinclair became a Clergyman but was recognized in Canada as an authority on the Gaelic language and Gaelic literature. He was ordained a Minister in the Presbyterian Church during 1866. He published several books about the Gaelic language and Gaelic poetry. In 1907, he was appointed a lecturer on the Gaelic subject at Dalhousie University in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Harry Ford Sinclair (1876-1956)

American Entrepreneur

Mr. Sinclair was an Oilman who acquired the assets of 11 small petroleum companies and by the end of the 1920’s, had parlayed these into Sinclair Oil Refineries, a single large producer with the capability of producing over 80,000 barrels of oil per day. During this period of acceleration, the Company was ranked as the 7th largest oil company in the United States with nearly 900 miles of oil pipelines. In 1922, Sinclair Oil was granted an oil lease without competitive bidding. Sinclair was later convicted of “Contempt of Court” and served a short prison term.

Upton Beall Sinclair Jr. (1878-1968)

American Journalist; Writer; Novelist; Political activist; Politician;

Born in Baltimore, Maryland, Upton Sinclair moved to Queen’s with his family and was educated at the College of New York graduating in 1897. He then studied law at Columbia University although he was more interested in writing. He learned several languages here including French, German and Spanish. He supported himself and paid his tuitions by selling his writing of boy’s adventure stories and jokes for cartoonists. He was an outspoken American Socialist who wrote over 100 books winning the “Pulitzer Prize” for Fiction in 1943 for his muck-raking novel “The Jungle”. This book exposed deplorable conditions in the meat packing industry which contributed in part to the later passage of the “Pure Food and Drug Act” as well as other protective legislation. He wrote additional exposes on working conditions in the automobile industry, in the coal mining fields, the oil industry and his favourite, journalism. He eventually ran unsuccessfully for Congress as a nominee from the Socialist Party and also ran as the Democratic Party candidate for Governor of California during the Great Depression, running under the banner of End Poverty in California, but was defeated.

Archibald Sinclair (1890-1970)

1st Viscount Thurso

British Military Veteran; Politician;

Archibald Sinclair trained at Sandhurst and served in the British Army during World War I. He was briefly second in command to Sir Winston Churchill when Churchill commanded the 6th Battalion of the Royal Scots Fusiliers'. He became a Scottish Politician and Leader of the British Liberal Party (later the Liberal-Democratic Party) and during World War II, 1940 to 1945, was the Secretary of State for Air. He also served as Rector of the University of Glasgow from 1938 to 1945. He resided at Thurso Castle near Thurso, Caithness on the north shore of Scotland, although now largely in a ruinous state, is still in Family hands in 2019.

Sister Margaret Sinclair (1900-1925)

Scottish Roman Catholic Nun;

Margaret endured many hardships during her youth, working at several jobs to help her Family cope with the daily cost of living. Her Mother became seriously ill necessitating Margaret to leave school to care for her. Later, she joined the "Celettine Poor Clares" taking up convent life and adopting the name of Sister Mary Francis of the Five Wounds. She worked hard to encourage giving and helping the poor while establishing a devout following as many saw her life to be like their own.

Allan Gordon Sinclair OC, FRGS (1900-1984)

Canadian Journalist; Writer; Broadcaster; and Commentator;

Sinclair was born in Toronto, Ontario, Canada and held various jobs after dropping out of High School. During World War I, Sinclair served as a part-time soldier in a militia unit of the 48th Highlanders of Canada. After the War, he took a bookkeeping job and met co-worker Gladys Prewett who he married. About this time, Sinclair began reporting for the Toronto Star and after an assignment in India, wrote his first book, "Foot-loose In India." His second book, "Cannibal Quest", about his experiences in Southeast Asia firmly established Sinclair as a writer with several more books to follow throughout his career. During World War II, Sinclair wrote and narrated stories on radio station CFRB about Canadians in battle. This would become a 40-year association between Sinclair and CFRB. In 1957, Sinclair also began a career in television as a panelist on the CBC Television series "Front Page Challenge." Often controversial, Sinclair was an outspoken critic of water fluoridation, the singing of God Save the Queen, Medicare and Taxation. He invested wisely in the stock market and became independently wealthy. He was appointed an Honourary President of Clan Sinclair Association (Canada) and was made an Officer of the Order of Canada by the Governor General.

Sinclair was then called to the Bar of Manitoba and from 1942 to 1943, he was a lecturer in Torts at the University of Manitoba. He then joined Canadian Pacific Ltd., in the Law

Department as an Assistant Solicitor and eventually rose to become President and CEO. He was also Chairman and CEO from 1972 to 1981. In 1983, he was summoned to the Senate of Canada representing the Senatorial Division of Halton, Ontario. A Liberal, he retired on September 27, 1988. In 1979, he was made an Officer of the Order of Canada "for his contribution to the commercial development of Canada". He was also inducted into the Canadian Business Hall of Fame. He was also the subject of a television documentary called "Best Job in Canada". In that program, he disclosed that his weekly salary was $10,700. One of his more colourful quotes was "I don't have heart attacks, I give them."

Lister Sheddon Sinclair OC (1921-2006)

Canadian Broadcaster; Playwright; Polymath;

Born in India, Lister was sent to live with an aunt in London and did not see his parents again until he was seven. He began his formal education at Colet Court and being gifted at mathematics, won a scholarship to St Paul's School in London. He and his Mother were visiting Niagara Falls when World War II broke out and subsequently, they settled in Vancouver. He enrolled at the University of British Columbia where he earned a Bachelor of Arts in mathematics and physics and began a lifelong friendship with classmate Pierre Berton. Moving to Toronto, he earned a Master of Arts from the University of Toronto supporting himself by lecturing in mathematics to undergraduates. Sinclair found employment as an actor with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC) performing in a variety of radio plays. He began writing for the network writing more than 400 plays. Following radio, Sinclair appeared on several CBC Television programs such as Front Page Challenge, Assignment and the Wayne & Shuster Comedy Show. Sinclair would spend over six decades with the CBC in various capacities including actor, playwright, writer, panelist, producer, lecturer, commentator and network executive. Sinclair was either a panelist or host on the Court of Opinion, Man at the Centre, The Nature of Things, Morningside and Ideas. He was awarded the Order of Canada in 1985.

Duncan Gordon Sinclair DVM MSc PhD (1933-)

First non-Medical Doctor to become Dean of Medicine;

Dr. Sinclair is an American-born Canadian academic. Born in Rochester, New York, he received a DVM from the Ontario Veterinary College at Guelph, a MSc from the University of Toronto and a PhD in physiology from Queen's University. From 1963 to 1965, he pursued post-doctoral medical research at St John's College, Cambridge. From 1974 to 1983, Sinclair was Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at Queen's. He later served as Vice-Principal of Institutional Relations, Vice-Principal of Services, Vice-Principal of Health Sciences and Dean of the Faculty of Medicine. Sinclair was the first non-medical doctor to be chosen as Head of a Faculty of Medicine in Canada. He retired from Queen's in 1996 but continues to be a guest lecturer at the University. In 1997, Queen's established the Dr. Duncan G. Sinclair Lectureship in Health Services and Policy Research. In 1989, he was named an Honourary Fellow in the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada. Sinclair was Chair of the Ontario Health Services Restructuring Commission and Founding Chair of Canada Health Infoway. He also served on the Steering Committee for the review by the Ontario Ministry of Health of the Public Hospitals Act.

Sir Clive Marles Sinclair (1940-)

British Inventor and Entrepreneur;

Sir Clive was best known for his work inventing various consumer electronic products during the 1960's, 70's and 80's. He founded Sinclair Radionics in 1961, where he produced the first slimline pocket calculator and later the ZX 80, the United Kingdom's first and highly successful mass marketed home computer costing less than £ 100. He also formed Sinclair Research producing the TV80, a flat screen portable mini television utilising an ingenious cathode ray tube. LCD television technology was in advanced development however, and the Sinclair FTV1 (TV80) was a commercial flop, only producing 15,000 units. Sinclair also formed Sinclair Vehicles and released the Sinclair C5, a battery operated electric vehicle that was also a commercial failure. Since then Sinclair has concentrated on personal transport, including the A-bike, a folding bicycle for commuters that weighs 5.5 kilograms (12 lb) and folds down small enough to be carried on public transport. His transmission used in his vehicles is also being used by a Canadian producer of water born vehicles called Sea-Doo. Due to his prowess as an inventor, Sinclair was Knighted in 1983.

Christine Margaret Sinclair OC (1983-)

Canadian Athlete; Olympian; Women's Soccer;

Born June 12th in Burnaby, British Columbia to Bill and Sandra Sinclair, Christine began playing soccer at the age of four and played basketball and baseball as well. Playing in a Burnaby boys baseball league, she made the local under-11 all-star team as a second baseman and selected her now legendary number 12 as a tribute to Toronto Blue Jays second baseman Hall of Famer, Roberto Alomar. Sinclair was selected to British Columbia's under-14 girl's all-star soccer team at age 11 and led the Burnaby Girls Soccer Club to six league titles, five provincial titles, and two top-five national finishes. She attended Burnaby South Secondary School where she led the soccer team to three league championships. She played for Canada's under-18 national team before making her debut at the senior level at age 16 at the 2000 Algarve Cup where she was the tournament's leading scorer. Having played over 15 years with the senior national team, now Captain, Sinclair has played in four FIFA Women's World Cups (USA 2003, China 2007, Germany 2011, Canada 2015) and three Olympic Football Tournaments (Beijing 2008, London 2012, Rio 2016). She has been shortlisted for FIFA World Player of the Year seven times in 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, 2010, 2012, and 2016. A two-time Olympic bronze medalist and twelve-time recipient of the Canada Soccer Player of the Year Award, Sinclair is Canada's all-time leading scorer and currently is second worldwide in all-time international goals scored with 168. She has also won Championships with three different professional teams. In September 2013, Sinclair was inducted into Canada's Walk of Fame and in June 2017, she was appointed an Officer of the Order of Canada by Governor General David Johnston. On January 29, 2020 Christine scored International Soccer goals 184 and 185 to surpass Abby Wambach in total International goals for either women or men... and she's not finished!

Norman David Inkster OC (1938-)

Career Law Enforcement Officer

Norman David Inkster descends from famous ancestors William Sinclair (1766-1818) and Nahovway (Norton) Sinclair (c1768-1857) of York Factory, Rupert's Land (Manitoba) (Note: See W&N bios above). Norman's GGG Grandfather William Sinclair descended from William of Rosslyn, 3rd Jarl of Orkney who, along with Nahovway, formed the first noble-blooded Sinclair union of mixed origins in Canada. Their fifth daughter Mary married John Inkster and their ninth child was Colin Inkster who would later become the 'High' Sheriff of Manitoba. Colin would marry Ann Tait and their fifth child would be John Rupert Finlayson Inkster. He married Anne Ellen 'Nell' Spencer and their first born was Harold MacFarlane Inkster. Harold subsequently married Martha Brown and their fourth child, Norman David Inkster was born in 1938 in Winnipeg. Norman spent his early years in Broadview, Saskatchewan, where his father was a Master Mechanic with the Canadian Pacific Railway. Norman was educated at the University of New Brunswick, majoring in sociology and psychology. Following graduation, he became employed in the Human Resources Department of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP). He would go on to serve the RCMP at several postings throughout Canada during his career. In 1961 he married Mary-Anne Morrison and they subsequently raised three children, Leslie Anne (1965), Scott (1967) and Dana (1972). He remarried in 2008 to Pamela Jeffrey of Toronto.

On September 1, 1987 Inkster was appointed the 18th Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, completing his term on June 24th, 1994. He was President of Interpol between 1992 and 1994. He then became a partner in KPMG in Toronto and became the global managing partner for their forensic business. During 1995, he was appointed an Officer of the Order of Canada. After retiring from KPMG, he formed Inkster Group which provided various security and policing services to a list of international clients. He was awarded with the Gusi Peace Prize during 2011.

Shelagh Rogers OC

Canadian Broadcast Journalist; Writer; Producer.

Shelagh Rogers is also a descendant of famous ancestors William and Nahovway Sinclair who are articulated early in this document. Factual DNA testing by a documented male descendant has proven beyond doubt that Shelagh's GGG Grandfather William Sinclair is a descendant of William of Rosslyn, the 3rd Jarl of Orkney who later became the 1st Earl of Caithness, Scotland. Shelagh's William, provided history with another 'signpost' of his heritage when his first Metis son was born circa 1794, aptly named William 'Credo' Sinclair, Credo is a family name registered for the exclusive use by the family heads of the Rosslyn St. Clairs. Shelagh descends from Credo and Mary Wadin McKay (1804-1893) who were married at Norway House (Manitoba) on June 21st, 1823.

A veteran broadcast-journalist, Shelagh Rogers is the host and a producer of The Next Chapter, an award-winning CBC Radio program devoted to writing in Canada. In 2011, she was named an Officer of the Order of Canada for promoting Canadian culture, and for her volunteer work in the fields of mental health, adult literacy and reconciliation. Also, in 2011, she was inducted as an Honorary Witness for the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada. Through sharing what she witnessed, she has committed to helping create a national understanding of the residential school era so that Canada will never forget, will never be able to deny what happened and will never be able to say, "we didn't know."

She is the co-editor of three books in the Aboriginal Healing Foundation's series "Speaking My Truth: Reflections on Reconciliation and Residential School". She holds honorary degrees from eight universities. She was the 2014 recipient of the Queen's University Alumni Humanitarian Award. In October 2016, she received the inaugural Margaret Trudeau Award for Mental Health Advocacy. Shelagh is the 11th Chancellor of the University of Victoria and was renewed for a second three-year term in 2018.

Dr. Niigaanwewidam James Sinclair

Professor in Native Studies; Television Commentator.

Niigaan Sinclair is Anishinaabe (St. Peter's/Little Peguis) and was born and raised in the Selkirk area near Winnipeg, Manitoba. He obtained his Bachelor of Arts in Education at the University of Winnipeg before completing his Masters (MA) in Native-and-African American Literatures at the University of Oklahoma. He attained his PhD in First Nations and American Literatures from the University of British Columbia.

He is currently Associate Professor in Native Studies at the University of Manitoba in Winnipeg. Niigaan is an award-winning writer, editor and activist who was named one of Monocle Magazine's "Canada's Top 20 Most Influential People" and one of the CBC Manitoba's "Top Forty Under Forty." He is a regular commentator on Indigenous issues on CTV, CBC, and APTN, and his written work can be found in the pages of newspapers like The Guardian and online with CBC Books: Canada Writes.

Niigaan won the coveted "Columnist of the Year Award" during May 2019 from the National Newspaper Awards for his writings about Indigenous issues. His first book on Anishinaabe literary traditions will be printed and distributed by the University of Minnesota Press during 2019.

(Note: Clan Sinclair Canada and its Members were honoured and delighted Dr. Niigaan Sinclair accepted their invitation to provide his “Perspective on Indigenous Affairs” during a ‘Black-Tie Dinner’ at their Clan Gathering held in Winnipeg during June 2019. Several descendants of William and Nahowway Sinclair attended the International Gathering which was also a Celebration of the Life and Times of William and Nahowway Sinclair).
